

Suggestion 1

In order to copy all these records of a friend of mine listed on this page I have to click each individual record to select it (the check boxes on the right hand side circled in red). I suggest putting a master check box here, which when clicked, will select all 20 records listed on this page and the same can be done for 40, 60 and 100 records view.

The screenshot shows the Observations.org web interface. The top navigation bar includes links to Google Maps, Gmail, and the Observations.org profile. The main content area is titled "Observations" and features a search bar, filters for species group, country, and date range, and a table of observation records. The table has columns for Date, time, number, Appearance, Activity, species, Area, Pr, status, and a rightmost column with checkboxes. The first 10 records are visible, showing various bird species observed on 25-04-2014. The checkboxes in the rightmost column are circled in red. A sidebar on the right contains a list of navigation options: Home, Observations, Photos, Sounds, External links, Phenology, Statistics, My List, My List (Month), User - Area statistics, Day list, and Create a relation.
